A STRONG STAFF. The Power of Pure Food.

The Power of Pure Food.

"Some years ago when we lived in New York city husband and I lost four of our little ones during the hot weather, "When we moved to Vineland, N. J., we made the acquaintance of the food Grape-Nuts. It was here that our little girl Majuba, was born, bull she was so frail and 'skinny' that we feared we would lose her as we had the other babies. When she was eight months old we learned about Grape-Nuts and began reeding her this food, and now wherever she goes our friends feel her arms she is see plump and her flesh is so firm.

"I am convinced that Grape-Nuts with a little white sugar and boiling water would save many a poor baby's life during the hot weather when milk is sour and the little ones suffer most.

"After seeing the power of Grape-Nuts upon our little girl my husband began its use, and all last summer when we lived at Essington, Pa., he eat Grape-Nuts and no meat. Although he was working at the hurdest laboring work, digging ditches all this time he felt strong and well without the meat just so long as he had Grape-Nuts." PAT GRIFFIN'S CASE WAS CONTINUED

Went Over at Request of Council-Taylor Sent to Grand Jury.

Grand Jury.

Upon motion of counsel for the defense, Mr. Harry Smith, the charge against Pat Griffin, alleging that he kept his barroom open last Sunday, was continued. The case was presented by Officers Thurman and Wyatt. Mr. Griffin was bailed by Mr. Charles Hutzler. The case will be called on Friday.

Abraham Duncan, the old negro who shot John Wood, a young negro, on the grounds of trespassing upon his premises and being disorderly, was discharged, and Wood was put under twelve months' security, which he could not give, and went to jail.

The case of Wesley Fountain, charged with failure to keep his promise to Annie Brown, went over one day.

In the forgery case in which Cleveland Taylor and J. P. Yarbrough were alleged to have uttered a bad check, the evidence was not strong enough to hold Yarbrough, and he was discharged. Taylor was sent on to the grand jury.

The other cases on the docket were simple drunks, and were disposed of accordingly.

SPORT WENT ALONG.
Since he was a puppy, Sport has had the habit of following Louis Turner, Mrs. Keene's coachman. Turner was driving in a runabout yesterday afternoon, and had with him his three-year-old son Alfred. Sport, who is as fond of Alfred as he is of the boy's father, followed the runabout, trotting along contentedly and disdaining the dogs that dared to challenge him.

as he is of the boys in the contentedly and disdaining the dogs that dared to challenge him.

Turner drew up before his home in Ocean Avenue, Cedarhurst. Leaving Alfred in the runabout, and without troubling to the the horse, he went into the house for a minute. Sport went along. As Turner was returning the horse took two or three steps forward.

"Whoa!" yelled Turner, so loudly and sharply that he frightened the horse, which broke into a gallop.

ON OWN INITIATIVE.

Without a word of command from Turner, of his own initiative, Sport shot after the horse like an arrow from a bow. In a moment he was running, at no small risk to hinself, directly before the runaway, springing at the horse's head, snapping at his nostrils, barking, saying as distinctly as ever wise dog talked.

Sport thoroughly appreciated Alfred's imminent danger. The dog made a mighty running jump, got a good buil terrier's grip on a rein near the bit, and hung on. The horse snorted and swung his head, expecting to throw Sport into the air. Sport hung on. The horse ran from Ocean into Cedarhurst Avenue, the runabout making the turn on one wheel, small Alfred bouncing like a rubber doil. Charles Weston, of No. 16 Maple Place, ran to the middle of the crossing of Cedarhurst and Central Avenues and easily stopped the runaway, which was going slow by that time. But Sport did not know Weston, so he took no risks. Although the horse stood, Sport hung on to the rein until Turner, breathless, arrived, plucked Alfred from the runabout and made certain he was not hurt a bit, only badly frightened.

The Bijou.

Appreciative audiences at the matines and night performances greeted the presentation of "Her Marriage Vow" at the Bijou Theatre yesterday. The production seems to have met with the approval of lovers of melodrama. The applause last night was liberal.

Manager McKee has issued a notice to the patrons of the Bijou to the effect that small children in arms are not to be admitted to the theatre hereafter. Many complaints came to him of annoyance, and he was reluctantly forced to rule that they must not be taken into the building.

The rule will be rigidly and impartially enforced from this time forward, and nedparture will be made in favor of any one. The Bijou.
